Call for Submissions – Atlantic Center for Learning Communities Blog

The Atlantic Center for Learning Communities is seeking articles for our new blog, which focuses on Best Practices in Learning Communities.

Is there some novel way your Learning Community integrates content? Do you make connections with extra and co-curricular programs in a way that you would like to share? Is there an event or lesson you use in a Learning Community that is really interesting? This is your opportunity to share what you do!

We will be accepting articles concerning all aspects of Learning Communities, including (but not limited to):

- Developing strong partnerships
- Encouraging integrative thinking
- Fostering co-curricular connections
- Assessing student learning and program success
- Developing student support systems

Submission guidelines

Submissions will be accepted on a rolling basis. To submit an article for the blog, please send it via email to George Hill (George.Hill@kbcc.cuny.edu), Terry Novak (Terry.Novak@jwu.edu), and Brad Hollingshead (bhollingshead@flsouthern.edu).

Please put "Submission for ACLC Blog" in the subject.

Submissions should be between 500 to 1000 words and attached to the email in Microsoft Word format (.doc, .docx, .rtf, etc.) with your name and article title as the file name. If you have any pictures you want to include with your article, please send them as separate attachments, and indicate in the text approximately where each picture should be placed.
